

Aquatic Science Record Sheet: Breeding Records

The breeding habits of fish vary greatly from one type to another. Some bear their young alive, and some lay eggs in the sand, in plants, or in a nest of bubbles. Others never reproduce in captivity. Some require special attention, while others require no effort at all.

Name _____ Grade _____ Year 20_____

Name of club _____ Years in club work _____

County _____ Township _____

Name	Date	Breeding Habits	Protection given young, special foods, number raised

