Keep Your House in Shape: The Handy Home Maintenance Checklist

Below is a home maintenance calendar to remind the “do-it-yourselfer” of tasks to consider around the home, as well as how often and when the jobs might need to be done (NOTE: Husbands might need to keep this list secure from spouses!)

Monthly

- Inspect and possibly change out HVAC filters. Many experts will say to change the filters monthly, but that’s not always necessary. For smaller families without pets or allergies, you’ll likely be okay changing the filters every 2-3 months. If the filter is dirty change it out, otherwise inspect it again next month. Go with cheaper filters, but replace them more often.
- Clean kitchen sink disposal. There are a bunch of ways to do this, but the handiest and best solution seems to be vinegar ice cubes. Put some vinegar in an ice tray and let it freeze, then run the ice through the disposal. It freshens it as well as ice sharpens the blades.
- Clean range hood filters. If you’ve never thought of doing this, you’re in for a real “treat” when you get that filter off the hood to clean it for the first time. Simply use a degreaser from an auto parts store mixed with hot water. Let the filter sit a few minutes, rinse it off, and you’re good to go.
- Inspect your fire extinguishers. This inspection doesn’t require much: ensure it has easy access (not being blocked by a garbage can or anything else), that the gauge shows adequate pressure, and that it has no visible signs of wear and tear.

Quarterly

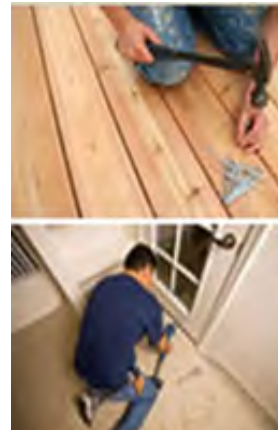

- Test smoke/carbon dioxide detectors. Another simple task; your detectors should have a “test” button. If the alarm sounds, you’re good to go. If not, replace batteries immediately and test again.
- Test garage door auto-reverse feature. In 1993, federal law required all garage doors to have this feature after multiple child deaths. Test every month by placing a 2×4 on the ground where the door would close. It should reverse after a second or so when the door hits the wood.
- Run water and flush toilets in unused spaces. This mostly applies to guest bathrooms or any other sinks/water sources you don’t use on a regular basis. This is to prevent grime or build ups.
- Check water softener, add salt if needed. You shouldn’t need to add salt every month, but it’s better to check anyway as it only takes about 5 seconds.

Biannually

- Test your water heater’s pressure relief valve. This will prevent mineral and corrosion buildup, which safeguards against leaks. It will also help your heater run more efficiently.
- Give your house a deep clean. Take one Saturday every six months with your whole family, and give the whole house a proper deep clean. Appliances, windows, dusting every nook and cranny (including the basement).
- Replace batteries in smoke/carbon dioxide detectors. Change batteries every six months.
- Vacuum your refrigerator coils. The fridge can use up to 15 percent of your home’s total power, so you want it running as efficiently as possible. Over time, the coils get dirty and your fridge requires more juice. You can save up to $100 a year by doing this, and it’s not at all difficult task.

Annually – Spring Season

- Check the exterior drainage. If water stays around your home for more than 24 hours, or moves toward your foundation, you have a few options. First, check gutters for a bad spout or a loose connection; they may also just need cleaning. Second, you can grade the area yourself with dirt. Third, for pavement, you can have professionals raise it so it drains away from your home.
- Clean out gutters. They’ve likely accumulated leaves and grime from winter snows and/or rains.
- Inspect the exterior of your home. Look around your house and make any repairs as needed. Be sure to check the foundation for cracks. A good silicone/caulk can fix a lot of your problems.
- Get your air conditioning system ready for summer; consider having it serviced. This one really depends on your individual home, and even which part of the country you live in. Also refer to the user guides for specific regular maintenance. Getting it serviced by a professional should be around $100 or less, and it will save money and headaches down the road.

Anyone who has attempted to grow fruit crops knows that they are attacked by a wide variety of insects and diseases, and are prone to environmental damage.

Managing Pests in Home Fruit Plantings (ID-146-W) provides information needed to produce an acceptable amount of quality fruit (apples, pears, peaches, plums, cherries, grapes, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, currants), with cultural and chemical controls, pest control schedules, and beautiful photos to aid in knowing what and when to spray.

Fair Entry

REQUIRED FOR FAIR

It's that time of year again to enter exhibits in Fair Entry for fair. Fair Entry is the system we use during fair time. Fair Entry helps us print entry labels, check-in projects, create judging sheets, enter results, and create show bills.

Fair Entry is open and located at duboiscounty-indiana.fairentry.com. Families will use same email and password from 4-H Online. 4-H Online sends project/animal information to Fair Entry. We request that all families have their exhibits entered into Fair Entry by June 24th, so we can have labels printed and handed to families in advance of project check-in. We are happy to assist members and families with this process.

Instructions and helpful Documents to navigate Fair Entry are located at
