Yesteryear

A 4-H Project That Explores Our Past

Yesteryear 4-H Project

(County Project Only – No State Fair Exhibit)

Project Requirements

Explore historical figures (people), places, things, events, businesses or organizations.

Suggested exhibit: Exhibit one poster, notebook or display. Project size is limited to 36x36x36.

Each project exhibit must include some sort of documentation and support material such as poster, notebook, journal, photo album, scrapbook, etc. This documentation may be presented in any combination of written form, photographs, oral recorded form, and/or recorded visual form. (Note: If you are exhibiting a recording, you must provide the device on which to play it. You will also need to be present for judging to work the equipment.)

Members may do as many activities as they wish, but, must complete one exhibit for the 4-H Fair.

Projects will be judged by the following grade levels, not individual topic areas:

Mini 4-H: Grade 2

Level A: Grades 3-5

Level B: Grades 6-8

Level C: Grades 9 and above

A Champion and Reserve Champion will be awarded in each level

(Exception: Mini projects are not considered for champion or above.)

Any 4-H member, regardless of grade level, may complete a fair exhibit from any of the suggested activities. Members are encouraged to follow personal interests and modify projects to make them age appropriate. Topics may be of local to world-wide interest.

Some Suggested Exhibit Ideas

(Use your creativity. Members are not limited to these options.)

Places to Go: Research a place of interest and make a project from your findings.

People to See: Explore historical figures (people) such as: school teachers, celebrities, athletes, elected officials, etc. Any of these might make a good research project.

Gone But Not Forgotten: Research a business or place that no longer exists but may have played an important role in history (i.e. schoolhouse, factory, church, etc.). A poster, scrapbook, or photo album could help preserve the past.

4-H as History: The county 4-H program has a rich history. It might be fun to trace the Presidents of a particular 4-H Club or 4-H Council, or maybe research the 4-H Educators/Agents that have served the county. Many awards, events, contests have photos to help document your research.

I Love A Parade: Many communities have local festivals, parades or similar events. It might be interesting to explore a local event and discuss the very first one, or why it became a festival, or maybe a photo display from multiple years. These events are usually well-documented in photographs.

Make a Documentary: It might be fun to re-enact a moment from the past and capture it on film. You and some friends might pose for a picture portraying a scene or maybe even a video that recreates an important occurrence.

Monumental Memories: Many important spots are marked with monuments or statues that capture the importance of historical events, places and people. (i.e. soldiers from past wars, important sites, etc.). Maybe a photo collage or model of one of these monuments would be a good project.

Seeing is Believing: Visit a local museum and look for interesting exhibit ideas. There are several great museum options right here in the county.

Hallowed Ground: Research the final resting place of someone who interests you. Cemeteries and gravestones can be a good place to find historically significant information.

Free Then ... Worth a Lot Now: Businesses and organizations have given advertising/promotional items over the years such as calendars, ash trays, pens/pencils. Perhaps a collection of these give-away items would make a great collection to display. (Do not plan to display actual items of great value. Photos of rare or expensive pieces are best.)

Living History: Learn about history first hand by interviewing someone who has lived a long time. Conversation with someone who is older may help you discover a little known fact or interesting exhibit idea.

Rail-Splitter's Homestead: Build a model of a log cabin or create a replica of a homestead from the past. Be creative when selecting building materials for cabins, fences, barns, etc. Members may also choose to paint or draw a scene depicting a pioneer homestead.

Gee, Haw, Whimmy Diddle: Make a toy that would be like a toy from a past era. Toys like Jacob's Ladder, Jacks, Jumping Jims, Checkers, Whimmy Diddles, Button and string "Buzz Saws", Cup and Ball and other handmade toys were popular in the 1800's.

Fourscore and Seven Years Ago: Explore a speech from Abraham Lincoln or other past political figure. Interpret what the speaker meant, explore the historical significance and the political climate in which the speech was first presented. Explain why the speech is an important part of our history.

The Lands of Lincoln: Discover the geographical impact Abraham Lincoln made. Pay close attention and highlight those that relate to Lincoln's time in Indiana. Maybe members can plan a trip to visit the Lincoln Boyhood Home National Historical Site or Lincoln State Park. Perhaps members might want to hunt for other sites visited by Lincoln. Members who like to take photographs may choose to make a collage of actual Lincoln historical sites. You could cover this same topic, but base it on a different historical figure.

Tailor Made: Research clothing, shoes, hats and accessories made and worn in a past time period. Members may choose to design and make an outfit or display vintage clothing and explain the occasion, event or work for which it was designed. These items may be displayed on dolls, mannequins or dress forms, etc.

Honest Abe: Abraham Lincoln exhibited outstanding personal character traits. One of those characteristics earned him the nickname "Honest Abe". Members could explore the personal traits he developed that contributed to his success and Presidency. Some exhibit ideas could be: a poster explaining those traits, a character summary in essay form or a research project that explores his popularity and rise to prominence among the citizens of the United States.

Tools Made Life Better: Pioneer life required many tools for daily survival. The majority of these tools were handmade for specific purposes. Members could explore the tools that interest them. Members might choose to make a poster or photo collection of such tools or perhaps make a reproduction(s) and explain its intended use(s). Avoid potentially harmful tools (such as an ax with a real head). Make a safe reproduction of the tool from wood or other materials.

Homespun Charm: Pioneer families often used folk crafts as recreation and gift-giving. Members could enjoy making similar folk crafts to exhibit. Such crafts might include (but, are not limited to): patchwork quilting, embroidery samplers, doll-making, weaving, knitting, whittling, etc.

Settler Cooking: Pioneer homesteads produced much of their own food. Members might try churning butter, baking homemade bread or cornbread, or cooking homegrown vegetables, etc. Food exhibit items should include recipes that would use ingredients that pioneer families would have available to them. Members might choose to prepare a meal for their family that would resemble a pioneer family meal. Photos of the event could show family enjoying the meal in pioneer family costumes. Perhaps other members may be interested in food preservation techniques then and now and explain how they are the same or how they differ.

From Here to There: Transportation was not an easy task for settlers. Members might explore which modes of transportation were used in the past. A poster displaying the types of transportation or a model of a locomotive train, carriage, wagon or ferry would be some ideas for members to try.

Not All Fun and Games: Pioneer families often played games which allowed them to have fun, but, also helped them be prepared for the demands of their survival. Wrestling, foot races, climbing trees, jumping rope, etc. would have been fun, yet strengthen their bodies at the same time. How might people of today use this method to be healthier?

Book Learning By Candlelight: Abraham Lincoln loved education and was an avid book reader. Books played an important role in his education and development. Members might choose to read a book that would have been available during Lincoln's time and report on its contents and how it might have played a part in Lincoln's education. Other members might like to explore what a pioneer schoolhouse was like and how it is different and / or similar to schools today.

Myth Buster: Many myths and legends surround some historical figures or places. Members could explore popular conceptions / misconceptions for historical accuracy. It could be fun and educational to collect short descriptions and play "myth buster" to determine which are true and which are not.

Working for a Living: Pioneer families tended to live in communities that had the things they needed. It might be interesting to explore what careers and occupations were necessary during pioneer days. Which occupations performed vital services and products to early settlers?

For the History Buff: Any topic not mentioned above. This category allows members to explore any other historical topic that interests them.

Please remember:

Use your creativity. Members are not limited to these topics.
