Brayden is a 6 year member of the Finley Fantastics 4-H club. He is the son of Sabrina Collins & Jason Collins.

The major projects that he has taken in 4-H include model car, digital artwork, market hogs & market sheep.

Brayden's future schooling/job plans include graduating with a Bachelors degree in fine arts from University of Alaska Anchorage and pursue a creative career in graphic design or related visual art fields.

The greatest contribution 4-H has made in Brayden's life is "helping me discover my passion for art and agriculture and showing me how dedication and creativity make a big difference. Through 4-H, I had the opportunity to showcase artwork, which helped me build confidence in my creative abilities. While showing market animals have taught me responsibility, time management and the importance of hard work."

Brayden describes the most important thing he learned from his participation in the 4-H program "hard work and community are super important. I built confidence through showing animals and creating art, made great friends, got help when I needed it, and learned how rewarding it is to help others too."
