Ready for the Interview

Students in the Intro to Agriculture class at South Knox High School gained lessons well beyond their textbook. As part of Purdue Extension's workforce development program, they learned practical behaviors and skills necessary for success in the job application process.

Visiting instructors discussed setting career goals, résumé writing, teamwork, time management, use of social media and leadership. They also walked students through the job interview process.

Learning these skills will help students fill the one million new or replacement job openings that the Indiana Department of Workforce Development anticipates by 2025.
