

Program: Community Health Coalitions Logic Model (rev 10/15/21)

Situation: A multi-disciplinary, comprehensive community health coalition is an effective, holistic model utilizing PSE approaches for improving the health of Hoosiers. Throughout the state, some counties have effective and active health coalitions, some have stagnant health coalitions, and some do not have an organized health coalition.

Assumptions: Purdue Extension's role with local health coalitions has increased but needs to be maintained and grow. Current health coalitions are functioning at different levels. Extension professionals need support in facilitating health coalitions, as well as helping them to identify the needs of their coalitions and how to assist them in moving toward their goals.

External Factors: Variation in community health needs and resources, readiness for community change. Partnerships with Indiana Department of Health, Indiana CTSI Community Health Partnerships Connections IN Health
