General Directions

1. Read the entire record before starting to fill out the forms.
2. If there are items you don't recognize or won't use, just leave their spaces blank.
3. Start your record the day you acquire your rabbits. End the record as specified by your project leader or rabbit superintendent.
4. Start a new record each year. This could be immediately after fair, if you plan to exhibit your current rabbits again next year.
5. All divisions must fill out pages 1 through 5. Second through tenth year members will also fill out pages 6 through 9, if breeding and/or building a herd, or attending open shows.
6. If you need further assistance, contact your 4-H county rabbit project leader/superintendent. (Enter the name and phone number of your 4-H county rabbit leader in the space provided below).

Beginning Inventory

An inventory at the start and the close of your rabbit project is a necessary part of your rabbit record. The beginning inventory lists all items on hand at the start of the project (animals and equipment) together with their value. Inventory items bought after the project starts will be entered as expenses to the project and in the closing inventory. Beginning inventory values are either (1) the amount paid or (2) the estimated market value in those cases where stock or feed was not purchased but was already on hand.

*If part of a larger operation, show value only for that portion used for this project. The closing inventory for the year just completed should be the same as the beginning inventory for the new year. Last year's closing inventory information may be transferred to the new record book and used as this year's beginning inventory.

Operating Expenses

Description of Expenses:

- Feed – Account for all feed used in the project, even if some feed is home-grown
- Supplies – Account for all supplies, equipment, building rental, repairs, etc., used with project, estimating the value of those prepared at home.
- Veterinary supplies – Include any medicines or vaccines used for control or prevention of disease as well as veterinarian services.
- Marketing expense – Include such costs as commission, sale expense and transportation.
- Rabbits purchased – Include cost of animals purchased during the project year, after beginning inventory.
- Miscellaneous expense – Include such costs as registration fees, electricity, water, show supplies and equipment, etc.
- Labor expense – Include time spent caring for your 4-H rabbits, (figure by multiplying the hours you have spent caring for your rabbits from acquisition to fair by the minimum wage.)

Feeding Record

Use separate pages for each project rabbit or a page for each age class and kind of rabbit. If all project animals are fed the same amount of the same ration, you may use a single sheet. When you make major ration changes, record them, noting the dates and changes in amount. Use ounces to record weights of the ration. If necessary, carry the balance over to extra sheets

Date	Kind*	Ration Type	Ounces Per Day

*Indicate what age class and kind of rabbit is being fed, for example, pregnant does, herd bucks, replacement animals, or young kits intended for the fryer market.

Income

Record the value of all products sold or used at home and all show premiums. If necessary, carry the balance over to extra sheets.

Closing Inventory

An inventory at the start and the close of your rabbit project is a necessary part of your rabbit record. The closing inventory lists items on hand at the close of the project together with their value. Inventory items bought after the start of the project should be entered in the closing inventory. The closing inventory value is the estimated market value.
